Business management education:

Management education is similar to medical education. It has minimum 3 components: (a) class room teaching from books, (b) dissection of animals and later human bodies under the guidance of an experienced doctor, and (c) experience with live patients in the hospital attached to the medical college. A real life manager is like a practicing doctor. Only a doctor who spends considerable amount of time working with patients in a protected and guided environment during his education is ready to handle patients independently. Similarly, only a management student who has been exposed to industry issues while studying is better equipped to tackle real life situations in the management world. Management education at minimum needs 3 components – teaching management concepts in classroom with the help of text books, using case study method to discuss business scenarios already occurred in real companies and real world industry projects. It is the third component which is generally missing but most important for the employers looking for managers who can take decision under stress and in a realistic manner. OCTAVE is one of the very few management institutes in India which addresses the requirement in an integrated and continuous manner during every semester.
